Changing your space can be a daunting task: the pitfalls are many and mistakes are costly. But work with Brian Goff of Brian Goff Interior Design and your dreams will evolve into a beautiful, soothing and satisfying reality with less stress and concern.

Brian Goff has been designing in the valley for nearly twenty years and established his own firm two years ago. He works with architects and contractors—but most importantly, homeowners—to realize the best qualities inherent in a remodel, a restoration or new construction. Regardless how simple or complex the assignment, “The size of the job is unimportant to me,” says Brian, “because bringing out the best in a project doesn’t depend on whether it is large, small or in between. What matters is that the homeowner’s own vision is realized in the manner they want it to be. I’m hired to facilitate the needs, wants and expectations of the client, and I’m persistent in doing that.”

As a full-service interior design firm, Brian Goff Interior Design creates spaces that incorporate a variety of finishes, from that unique, one-of-a-kind piece of furniture, to the perfect lamp, or the fabrics and patterns that energize a room. Collaboration and capability are essential, and Brian Goff stresses that the best designs come from careful listening: “When you are working for the same purpose, when you understand that it’s the homeowner’s vision you’re trying to achieve, that’s really where good design comes from. It’s a better product when we all understand the goal.”

Some projects can be challenging. “It’s an inherent part of the process,” Brian says. “At my firm, we take time to research and solve each challenge as it evolves. I see my role as being the one who eliminates those worries and stresses from my client’s life. Repeat clients tell me they like how diligently and efficiently I work, and as a result, they remember their projects as being an enjoyable process, not a hassle. In that way, I think our firm is distinctively different.”
